Ad Text I see many young Black girls skating and excelling in a field that used to be predominantly white. In the sense that efforts were really made to prevent Black people from participating in such sports, back in the days.

But thanks to Debi Thomas and other Black skaters, we changed the game and on Feb. 8, 1986, Debi became the first Black skater to hold a US national titles in ladies' single figure skating.

Debi, a physician, became the 1986 World champion, the 1988 Olympic bronze medalist, and a two-time U.S. national champion.
